Newly Elected Councillors Will Be Sworn in Next Monday

The last meeting of Town Council for 1937 met last Monday and very little business was done.

The next meeting will be held next Monday when the three newly elected councillors will be sworn in. These are C. Evans, J. Hope and W. Willis.

Mayor Sangster was re-elected and the other three councillors for 1938 are: M. Hindahl, C. Hutchins and A. Shaw.

Mrs. A. T. Straton and V. Anderson as representatives of the local I.O.O.F. appeared before council and requested that certain arrangements be made for payment of taxes for the lodge building. Council asked the delegation to submit a written agreement or suggestion as outlined by the local officials for the next council meeting. This was agreed.

Several unemployed in town wrote council asking for clothing for members of their families. The matter was passed over to the local Red Cross asking it to investigate and report to council.

Accounts as passed by the finance committee were approved or payment.

A letter was received announcing the retiring of Dr. Ward as Medical Health officer as he was shortly leaving town.

The appointment of filling the vacancy was left over until the next council meeting.

Bingville is in Serious Condition With Deep Snow

Cattle Short of Feed and Some Are Put out of Misery

Reports this week are to the effect that farmers' conditions in the Bingville district are very serious. The heavy falls of snow since early winter have piled up to five and six feet and the roads in all directions are now impassable. Feed for horses and cattle is very scarce and it is impossible to bring it out as trucks and cars cannot get through the roads and horses are too poor to make the trip.

We have learned that stock is starving and that in many cases animals have been shot to put them out of their misery.

Ever since the first fall of snow early winter in chinook winds have struck that district and the stock cannot paw through to grass.

Mr. W. A. Pratt, who takes the mail from Medicine Hat to Bingville, has had some hard times to get through for some time and in many cases he was in a serious condition.

Three Councillors Were Elected on Monday Contest

Two Previous Members Returned and One New Candidate

Despite the heavy snow fall which filled up the streets last Monday, there was a fairly large number cast their votes on the municipal election. In all 254 votes were cast and only six were spoiled.

Seven candidates were in the field for councillors and only three were to be elected. The candidates elected were:

Mrs. C. Evans, J. Hope and W. Willis.

The vote was as follows:

Evans	207
Hope	150
W. Willis	108
N. Willis	96
Van Wert	89
Podesta	51
Paterson	43

The newly elected councillors will be sworn in at the first regular meeting which will be held next Monday evening.

On nomination day Mayor H. Sangster and three school trustees, Mrs. Stoms, A. R. Ballantyne and Rev. H. N. Hall were declared elected as there was no opposition.

At the provincial trustees' convention at Calgary, strong protest was registered against the formation of larger school units without a vote of the people.

Another startling effort to monetize the credit of the province is shortly to be undertaken by the Alberta Social Credit government. It is declared on reliable sources in the capital city.

Lord Atholstan First Canadian Journalist To Receive A Knighthood

Lord Atholstan, publisher of the Montreal Star, died recently at his home in Montreal after a long illness. He was in his 90th year.

First Canadian journalist to receive knighthood and a peerage, Lord Atholstan became the Marquis of Huntingdon, a title chosen to commemorate the name of his birthplace, Huntingdon County, about 45 miles southwest of Montreal.

Born of Scottish parents in the little farming community of Atholstan, Hugh Graham entered the newspaper business as a lad of 15 under his uncle, the late F. H. Parsons, in the old Montreal Telegraph. From a shy farmhand, young Graham gradually rose through the difficult climb to become president of the paper in 1897.

But his association with the paper was not confined to the newspaper. Numerous financial directorates included his name. No one knew the extent to which his financial acumen was exercised. He was a quiet man, of unassuming attitude who never lost his affection for the paper he had founded.

Patrons Of Ottawa House Dining Room Not Picky Eaters

A staff of 60, few of them seen by the public, are now busy preparing and serving meals for 500 guests who dine three times daily in the parliamentary restaurant on the top floor of Parliament House in Ottawa, looking out on the Ottawa river.

"Parliamentarians are easy to please," says Henry Levesque, head waiter of the restaurant. "In my 30 years in this business they are the least fussy people. I have come across, and, except for the occasional dietitian, the plainest the food, the better they like it."

Eighteen trim waitresses in ocean blue uniforms with white pointed collars and cuffs attend the guests, 250 of whom are served at one sitting in the long marble-pillared dining room, lighted by domed skylights and designed with individual tables, the size of dinette, along each side.

The latest in "kitchen freedom equipment" is included in the work in the new machinery behind the scenes in the kitchen. Batter for 50 layer cakes is mixed, or five gallons of cream are whipped at one sitting, in a modern mixer-drum, one-half feet high.

Three bushels of potatoes, once the blue uniforms are peeled and cleaned in 15 minutes by an electric peeler, ready for each meal. A barrel of apples corer and pared in 30 minutes by an electric peeler. Between 8,000 and 10,000 dishes are washed daily by an electric dish washer, and 300,000 plates, 50 leaves of bread are sliced daily, taking 20 seconds to a loaf.

That silver in the kitchen is in a revolving copper container filled with salt bearings and a chemical solution and is turned out almost instantaneously by an electric peeler. Scullery days, the "pot polisher" keeps gleaming the copper kettles for the silver.

Unlike other dining establishments, the restaurant seldom needs a piece of silver from the collection of 4,000 cruet bottles, hors d'oeuvres trays, finger bowls, salt cellars, pepper shakers, cream jugs, sugar bowls, tea and coffee pots, water jugs and odd comforts.

Salt As A Medicine

Any Number Of Ways It Can Be Effectively Used

Salt has many uses of medicinal value. Many people who suffer from frequent skin blemishes on the face fail to realize that quite often it is the direct result of insufficient salt in the food; this has the effect of making the skin dry and the result is usually seen in skin eczema.

Those whose eyes are inclined to weak and watery should find that regular bathing every day in a weak solution of salted water (used face) salt only should be used for the eyes, but not only strengthen the eyes themselves but also the eyelashes, particularly where there is a tendency to break off.

A salt bag, heated slightly, and applied locally to any muscular spot will have the immediate effect of loosening the pain.

When strains or sprains have been dealt with, it will be found beneficial to soak the injured ankle, foot or wrist in a bath of fatty hot water containing a good handful of salt; this has the effect of toning up and strengthening the muscles considerably.

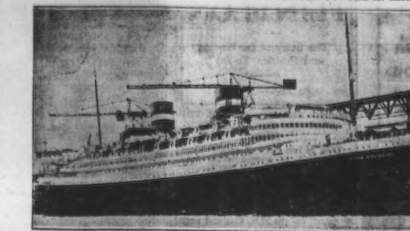

Salt can be very well described as an excellent throat tonic, which is particularly useful for those who have of necessity to do a good deal of talking in their work, while those who are inclined to catch a cold easily need to tone up and strengthen the throat, and it is both simple and beneficial to use a salty gargle made of a strong solution of salt and water.

Salt has the effect of making any temperature six degrees colder than ordinary, so that it affords considerable protection to those who are inclined to take cold easily if the neck, throat and chest are sponged in cold salted water every day.

NEW DUTCH LINE TO MAKE MAIDEN VOYAGE IN MAY

On May 1st the Holland-American line's new 33,000-ton steamship line, the Nieuw Amsterdam, will sail from Rotterdam, the Netherlands, where it is shown, for New York on its maiden voyage. This is the first picture of the new liner since its completion. It is 721½ feet long and will carry 1,350 passengers.

Great Bells

Russia Appears To Have The Largest Bells In The World

The passion for great size in bells seems to have been more prevalent in the past than it is nowadays. The largest bell hung in England since Great Paul is to be provided as a birthday bell in the Viceroy's tower of Liverpool Cathedral, but though its cost, with the necessary supporting structure, will be just under £7,000 it remains a fact that this bell of 14½ tons will not rank very high in the list of the great bells of history. It will be heavier than Big Ben, which, now that it is heard so often all round the world, may make a good claim to being the most famous specimen of them all. But after Big Ben and a bell at Erfurt, which is a little lighter than the new Liverpool bell will be, the scale rises rapidly.

Great Paul, St. Paul's Cathedral, is 14½ tons; Peter and Vienna have bells of 17 tons and upwards. Of bells of one of 18 tons. When we go to China there are Nanking with one of 22 tons and Peking with 53½ tons.

But it is in Russia that the really heavy bells are to be found. If they have survived. The Great Bell of Moscow can hardly be counted as lost. It was cracked in 1653 in founding and was never hung. Its weight was 198 tons. That they hung Boris Godunov's bell of 128 tons, and two others are recorded with weights of 80 tons and 57 tons. Yet it seems that comparatively small bells such as Great Paul and Big Ben give fairly impressive results—Manchester Guardian.

Electricity Guards Honey

Method Used By U.S. In Honkies To Keep Bees From Stinging

Bees-keeping is next to impossible in the Rockies. Bees are the reason. To cope with them the University of California and the United States Department of Agriculture have resorted to electricity. Study fences with four charged wires or insulators surround the hive. A battery of dry cell electricities the wires for two months at a daily cost of three cents. Since bees do most of their prowling just prior to photographing the bees of the current season, the materials for the trial fence thus far built cost from $10 to $40.

Prairie Provinces Awaited If Bankers Of Wheat Per Are Draining Past 60 Years

"If wheat cannot be produced, little can be done but let the land go back to grazing," declared Charles W. Peterson, editor of the Farm and Ranch Review, Calgary, speaking at Moose Jaw. "In any case," he said, "if we are forced to go back to this destructive change, we must have overwhelming proof."

Mr. Peterson addressed more than 200 members of the Moose Jaw board of trade when they held their annual meeting in the Hotel Grand Hotel.

"Early explorers reported the same conditions existing in Saskatchewan in early times," Mr. Peterson said, referring to drought conditions. "Every 25 years there had been a major drought. Mr. Peterson claimed, and every 46 years there was a major one. According to the scientific research, the present dry condition should end this year."

The prairie provinces had averaged 17 bushels of wheat per acre during the last 40 years while the four main wheat producing states, North and South Dakota, Minnesota and Kansas, produced only 11 bushels of wheat per acre during the 40 years.

Is Still Writing Books

But Minister Once Advised Novelist To Do Something Useful

G. B. Burpee, father of the Minister of Transport, who is just publishing his 16th novel, has reason to be proud of his achievement, which might even have changed the opinion of his choice of a career expressed by a Presbyterian elder who befriended him when he went to Canada in the days of his youth. Mr. Burpee told his kindred how he had achieved his ambition to become a novelist, and after supper the old man offered prayer, gave thanks for the young man's safe arrival and added:—"Lord, he says he intends to write books. Turn him from the hour of his ways and teach him to do something useful."—Glasgow Herald.

French Authors Express Their Dislike For Writing Books

Curious, isn't it, how people are never satisfied with what they are doing?

A survey among French authors reveals they are no better satisfied than the rest of us. If you want to be happy, don't choose a literary career is the opinion of most of them. The story about writers working with inspiration in their hearts, joyful in expressing themselves, is an illusion. It consists rather of yearly pouncing a typewriter and dragging their lives out for ungrateful editors.

Collette, France's best-known woman writer, said recently that she positively loathed writing, and only does so because she finds she can't get along without food. "The days I write are the days I lose," said Henri Montherlant. "I'd rather be a Minister. It's always been my ambition," sighs Andre Maurois.

Marcel Prevost, on the other hand, longs to be a teacher. Julien Benda goes to school to study for a doctorate. A novelist, he says, is a man who is tormented books and who has a great following among the younger generation in France. Marceline Vivier prefers gardening to the pen, and Jeanne Galys wants to be an electrician, protesting that she thinks writing the most disagreeable profession in the world.

Has His Own System

Senator Knows How To Be Popular With The Ladies

A senator from a Southwestern state (sorry, we can't tell) has revealed the secret of his popularity among the ladies. He keeps notes on everyone he meets at luncheons, dinners and receptions, indexed according to the date and place. After the name of each lady he notes on items concerning what she wore or how she dressed her hair. Then when he meets her again, he can say, "Yes, indeed, I remember you perfectly, you were a stunning yellow dress with hair glowing."

No wonder the ladies all vote for him at election time. Any man who years to be liked by the fair sex can profit by using the senator's system. Keep notes, young man, keep notes.—Liberty.

A Secret Of Nature

World's Greatest Purity Is The Way Diamonds Are Formed

The diamond, of all gems, is the world's greatest purity. It has good the elements of many kinds into a game of wits with nature. Up to the present nature has always won. Man has discovered how to make many other gems, like the opal and the ruby, but no man can make a fine gem diamond. Physiologists have learned, they think, how nature's diamond is pure carbon—but the process used by nature to turn a bit of carbon into a sparkling crystal has remained nature's secret.

Strikes a match and let the flame burn for a moment will down the wooden stick. Take the burnt end and smash it on a piece of paper until you have a pinch of black carbon. With this pinch of carbon in your fingers you are holding the same material as that you cherish as a diamond. By nature, the great alchemist, has transmuted black soot into a white blue gem.

The physicist knows that if he takes carbon powder and subjects it to great enough heat he can melt, or fuse it—and also that if it is subjected to great enough pressure while cooling it will change into an octahedral crystal. Man has created in electric ovens great heat but the heat required to melt a thousand tons of carbon is thousands of times that the heat required to melt sugar.

We can melt sugar and let "rock sugar" form into clear prismatic crystals. But to melt carbon, heat and pressure to melt carbon, and crystallize gem-size diamonds. On a small scale, synthetic diamonds have been made by encasing a 12-inch steel ball around powdered charcoal, placing the ball in an electric oven until it is red hot and then dropping it in a tank of ice water. The icy water cools the steel as suddenly that it contracts with tremendous pressure around the carbon center—and sometimes a minute diamond is born.

But man cannot make big diamonds. They have to be dug out of the earth in a place called kimberlite pipes (natural veins in which nature has formed them) and only a very few of these pipes have ever been found. First India, then in Africa, then in Brazil, then in British Guiana the gem has been found. Once only in the United States in Arkansas, diamonds have appeared in small sizes and quantities. It seems that nature, too, has had a hard time making the premier gem. She makes gold, platinum, copper, iron, silver in thousands of places—but the number of diamonds can be counted on one hand.—William La Verre in the Milwaukee Journal.

Quality In Produce

Necessary To Maintain High Standard For Quality of Canadian Consumers

As the great bulk of produce is imported, the maintaining high standards for the quality of Canadian consumers is desirable. Agriculture Minister Gardiner, told the Canadian Manufacturers' Association convention at Winnipeg. Mr. Gardiner addressed the convention by radio from Ottawa and his speech also was broadcast over the national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

He expressed satisfaction at the results of a campaign carried on in December to establish a national demand for greater quality. The department sponsored an advertising campaign to tell consumers how to identify the various grades and the co-operation of retailers and wholesalers was enlisted.

The result was one of the most spontaneous acceptance of a retail merchandising program ever experienced in this country," he said.

Increased exports of dressed poultry to the United Kingdom and of live poultry to the United States in recent years had helped producers and distributors in Canada, but the combined return from these sources was much less than from the domestic market.

What
Purposes do
Life Insurance
Premiums Serve?

Answer.—They provide your dependants a guaranteed sum in the event of your death—or provide money for your old age.

Question.—What is done with the premiums you pay?

Answer.—The savings which you put into Life Insurance are combined with those of other policyholders and are carefully invested in the best interests of all policyholders.

Q.—What is the guarantee back of these invested funds?

A.—The security of the individual loans, in addition to the integrity of the borrowers—whether governments, corporations, or individuals.

Q.—Why are premiums called savings?

A.—Because, year after year, they build up the fund out of which payments to policyholders and beneficiaries are made.

Q.—How much of this money is paid out to policyholders and beneficiaries in Canada?

A.—Half a Million Dollars every business day.

This is the second of a series of messages sponsored by Life Insurance Companies operating in Canada. The third, to appear in two weeks' time, will discuss Life Insurance assets.
